The Successful High School Student and College Applicant

Applying to college is a stressful and daunting time period for students and parents alike. In this course you will learn about how to be a successful college applicant. You'll learn about choosing the right college using the "Art and Science of College Research." The course provides an insiders perspective of the application evaluation process including the admissions philosophy and mindset of the college admissions officer. The course approach integrates scientific research from the field of Positive Psychology to help mitigate a student's lack of motivation or self-doubt so that students can find their passion. This a different kind of college course, meant to address both short and long term planning.
